...nobody seems to be sure just what Clarence's last name is, because when he applied for his job, the secretary misunderstood his last name. The play moves along merrily, reaching its climax when Clarence's true identity is revealed and his love entanglements are straightened out.

The leading roles are played by George Reinke, cast as Clarence, Dorothy Davis, who makes her initial appearance on the Wartburg stage as the forceful and charming school teacher Governor, and Dorothy, Reinke's sister.

part of Cora, the sweet but self-willed girl of 15. The part of her brother Bobby, 17-year-old Willie Baxter, is played by Arnold Rasbe, who will appear on the Warburg stage for the last time after three years of active participation in dramas. Margaret Hann plays the part of Mrs. Wheeler, while that of Mr. Wheeler, a wealthy New York businessman, is portrayed by Jack Meyer. The part of the good looking, sophisticated young gentleman, Hubert Stern is played by Don Loomis. In addition to Miss Dierks, three other freshies are making their initial appearance on the Warburg stage in the person of Rosalee Wolfe, the efficient secret

Bruising Intramural Cage Season Opens

About two weeks ago the fellows that were interested in playing intramural basketball signed up and a few days later teams were drawn up from those interested. Jack Meyer, Max Schermer, Art Albers and Don Loos acted as board of directors. The Navy was elected captain for the Army, and Doc Becker for the Navy. Hamline for the Coast Guard and Diemer for the Marines.

The Navy defeated the Army in the first game by a score of 32-21. Jack Meyer led the Navy attack with nine points. Becker led the Army with seven. Army—

In the game between the Coast Guard and the Marines, the Coast Guard came out on top by a score of 36-13. Muehl was the high scorer with 13 points. The Coast Guard was probably the best team in the league. They were better organized and had less feeling. The final time score was 22-13 in favor of the Coast Guard.

KNIGHTS LOSE TO ST. OLAF

The St. Olaf Navy assaulted five times but the Knights 31-18. The game was a hard fought battle that Friday night at Northfield. The Navy boys started the game and whipped in a barrage of quick baskets before the Knights realized what was happening. The Captains built up momentum in the first half and intermission found the Knights with a 21-10 lead. The Helmsmen started to close in on the Navy but the Knights outscored the Oles, but the deficit was too large and the Knights did not consistently enough from the field. The Navy made make matters even worse the Oles missed nine of their fourteen free throws. The Navy won in three third goals and a free throw to take scoring honors and Capt. Merle Kien rang up three baskets in the second half rally to net six. The Navy triumphed in the second half rally to net six. The Navy triumphed in the second half rally to net six.

GUSTAVUS FIVE VICTOR 45-17

W.A.A. WHIPS HOME 31 TO 19

The Warburg Girls basketball team got up to a fast start this year as they rolled past the Gustavus Home staff tonight 31-19. The winners were never seriously threatened and held a 16-7 half time margin. The scoring was evenly divided among the forwards. Helen, Evelyn Windward, Helena Beslake and Verda Schermer, recently made the statement that Parsons and Iowa Western play the best first class college basketball in Iowa. These two southern Iowa schools will meet each other four times.

Warburg had made good early teams in the past but they haven't had any outside games the last few years. They hope to meet several local high school teams in the winter or possibly some Iowa Conference sextets.

Behind The Varsity

NON-CONFERENCE WARFARE

The varsity closed up its Pre-Christmas non-conference schedule with two losses and one win. The long awaited Minnesota trip proved not too exciting. The varsity Knights played to the powerful St. Olaf and Gustavus Adolphus quintets. The boys didn't really play either of the schools to a close game. The varsity was evenly matched on both respective campuses. St. Olaf's squad was evenly made up of civilians and cadets but the Gustavus team was composed entirely of Navy and Marine personnel. Even if the Knights didn't win, they picked up valuable experience which is sure to pay dividends in future competition.

It's mighty interesting to see how St. Olaf and Gustavus Adolphus come out in their remaining games. There are 600 service men on the Northfield campus and nearly as many at St. Peter. Not one civilian reported for practice at Gustavus. They simply didn't have a chance because there are dozens of former college stars in the Navy ranks. Several of the Marines there played for Hamline U in St. Paul which were the National Intercollegiate Champs a few years ago. That's the kind of competition the Knights played.

It's been said again and again that the Navy saved college football this year, and perhaps the same will be said concerning basketball after the season has closed. The Navy permits its students to participate in college athletics but the Army doesn't. Six of the players on this year's All-American football team are Navy men.

The service men almost completely dominate teams wherever they are located. True, those schools have an advantage over other colleges who have no service men, but the spirit on those campuses isn't what it used to be. The players assure more of a professional attitude and don't feel they are winning for the school. The students would rather see their own boys play—win or lose. At least that's the impression we got on Minnesota's trip.

One couldn't help but notice the difference between last year's Ellsworth five and the one that took the floor Tuesday night. Last year's Knights had to battle all the way to tie out a close win, but they had no trouble at all this week as they rolled over the Iowa Falls boys 45-21. The brand of basket ball wasn't up to Iowa Conference ratings but the locals proved that they could fill the hoop if they wanted to. The win Tuesday night was the fifth in the last eight games at home and leads to this—that Warburg is mighty hard to beat at home. Upper Iowa will find that out next Wednesday night when the two teams open their conference schedules. Little is known about the strength of the Peacocks, but good basketball teams are a tradition at that school. The prospects are for another close, hard-fought contest. The Upper Iowaans absorbed a 40-38 beating here last year and we predict the history will repeat itself on Tuesday night as Doc Hertel's and Doc Dorman's hoopers clash.

BEAT THE PEACOCKS!!!

Uncle Sam's navy and marines got together at Gustavus last Saturday night and handed the Knights a 45-17 smelting. The Minnesota had "the situation well in hand" at all times but they had to work for every basket they got as the stubborn Knights fought valiantly against unmountable odds. Most of the Gustavians are former college stars but Doc Becker's boys never stopped fighting and the game went at all a runaway as the score might indicate. The Hertelmen had tough luck on their shots and the final score would have been much closer if they could have hit their shots better. The way they are capable of doing.

Johnny Keller gave Warburg an early lead as he broke through the Gustav defense and dribbled in for a set-up in the opening minutes of the first half. The first was quickly wiped out as Surell, a former Eastern high of Minneapolis, who moved like greased lightning, he got the notion to, landed in six quick field goals to give the service boys a commanding lead. The winners had plenty of substitutions and pulled out all the stops. The Warburgers in the closing minutes. Merle Kien, who strayed into the line, threw in the second half field goal and the Knights scoring. J. Keller picked up a brace of field goals and Sandy got three. Lowell Koch played a bangout four game and made some brilliant defensive plays.

Hertle Men Bury Ellsworth Under Barrage of Baskets

Capt. Merle Kien poured in 13 points to lead the heels to a 46-21 win over an unimpressive Ellsworth Jr. college five here Tuesday night. The visitors managed to jump into a 3-0 lead but Herman Muehl, curly team center, slipped in three free throws to give Warburg a lead they never relinquished. The Warburg regular didn't play nearly all the game, as Doc Hertel tried out various combinations. Johnny Keller played only a few minutes of the game and then was forced to retire because of illness.

Wally Becker took his forward spot and turned in another fine game. He added five points to the Knight total. Ed Fritschel, who played on the zone New Hampton team of two years ago, played his first varsity ball and made three points. Cronrath, Ray Huen and Shorty Sailer all countered late baskets to break into the scoring column for the first time. Lowell Koch, who played the Paul Keller played zone defense ball since the visitors' orthodox style of play. The contest was tied at 10-10 at intermission and the Knights soon turned it into a shutout practice session. Huen registered their first 1943 win. Capt. Omale made all of his team's points.
